PERSPECTIVES IN BIOLOGY AND MEDICINE

Volume 33 • Number 4 • Summer 1990

CONTENTS

469	Samuel Hellman	The Aims of Education
480	Robert S. Root-Bernstein	Do We Know the Cause(s) of AIDS?
501	Paul F. Basch	Biomedical Innovation and World Health
509	Norman W. Kasting	A Rationale for Centuries of Therapeutic Bloodletting: Antipyretic Therapy for Febrile Diseases
517	Nancy S. Jecker	Appeals to Nature in Theories of Age-Group Justice
528	Brad Grissom and Eli Chernin, editors	It Has Been Said
531	Frank D. Mann	The Dynamics of Free Cholesterol Exchange May Be Critical for Endothelial Cell Membranes in the Brain
535	David Barnard	Healing the Damaged Self: Identity, Intimacy, and Meaning in the Lives of the Chronically Ill
547	Anne Hunsaker Hawkins	A Change of Heart: The Paradigm of Regeneration in Medical and Religious Narrative
560	Carl R. Honig	Leisure for Creative Thought: Planned Respites from Classroom and Laboratory
567	Dewey A. Nelson	Thoracic Outlet Syndrome and Dysfunction of the Temporomandibular Joint: Proved Pathology or Pseudosyndromes?
577	Richard B. Gunderman	Health and Fitness
589	William B. Naso	Plato's Physician Model
598	Mary G. Winkler and Karl E. Anderson	Vampires, Porphyria, and the Media: Medicalization of a Myth
612		BOOK REVIEW: Thinking about Science: Max Delbrück and the Origins of Molecular Biology, by Ernst Peter Fischer and Carol Lipson
		MISCELLANY by N. Stuart Harris, Samuel Stearns, Suzy Conway, and Yvonne Baron Estes